

I would like to voice my opposition to any telephone or cable company to gain control over my internet access. I own and operate a small independent ISP and most of my customers do business with me because they are fed up with the mega companies who have are good at collecting money but don't seem to be able to provide consistent service and who have marginal customer service at best. I employ 10 people, provide their families with health insurance, a 401(k) plan and a profit sharing plan. I care about my employees and my customers - match this to the poor service, massive layoffs and greed of the mega corporations and the choice seems obvious. Thanks,
David Davenport